Prince Bishops Teaching School Alliance in collaboration with Steve Wells of Art Matters.

Steve Wells has over 35 years of experience as a GCSE Art and Design moderator/examiner including 10 years as the Chief Examiner (1994-2004) and is currently an Assistant Principal Moderator. He also works as a Visiting Lecturer/Link Tutor on the PGCE Art, Craft and Design Programme at Northumbria University.

This course will consider the GCSE Art and Design course in detail and look at how you can deliver this effectively in your school or college. This course has been designed to cover the new specifications and is an ideal starting point for those delivering any of the titles under the new specification.

This course is for all teachers of GCSE Art and Design, including curriculum leaders, experienced teachers and NQTs. Even if you have some experience in teaching art and design you will still find this course extremely useful as it has been designed to cover the fundamental knowledge and skills you need for the successful delivery of your own GCSE programme of study in the shortest possible period of time.

Course Overview

This GCSE Art and Design course, together with the teaching and learning support material provided, delivers: a complete tour of the new GCSE Art and Design specification; consideration of what has changed and the new requirements; a detailed look at the assessment objectives and guidance on how these can be met; consideration of the new requirements for drawing and written annotation; and the new 1-9 grades. GCSE ART and DESIGN 2018 Monday 11th December 2017

Whitburn Church of England Academy – South Tyneside

Steve Wells is celebrating 40 years in art and design education.

These days as an Independent Art and Design Consultant he is more concerned with passing his knowledge, skills and expertise onto others, through designing and delivering cutting-edge professional development programmes

Steve has over 35 years of experience as a GCSE Art and Design moderator/examiner including 10 years as the Chief Examiner (1994-2004) and is currently an Assistant Principal Moderator. He also works as a Visiting Lecturer/Link Tutor on the PGCE Art, Craft and Design Programme at Northumbria University.

Steve was the curriculum leader of an extremely successful Art Department in an 11-18 comprehensive school with a very large Sixth Form for 30 years, which was assessed as being outstanding by OFSTED on three occasions. The department achieved excellent examination results, with over 90% GCSE pupils attaining grades C-A* since 1998, and 55% of A level Fine Art and Photography students attaining grades B-A*. I was a Teacher Adviser and an AST for Art and Design with South Tyneside Education Authority.

He has been designing and delivering very successful CPD Art and Design courses for more than 20 years and his teaching and learning support materials are used in many schools and colleges.
